Rebel Victory Poses Threat To Vientiane

Staging Area's Fall Jolts Government Plan For Offensive

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) - Pro-Communist forces have seized the initiative again in the Laotian civil war. The rout of royal troops from the Ta Vieng staging area looked Sunday like a major setback to government plans for a counteroffensive.

Laotian fliers carried on, however, making strafing and rocket attacks on the rebels in Ta Vieng with all their air force-four propeller-driven T6 training planes recently received from the United

There's a threat to Vientiane in the Red victory 90 miles northeast of the administrative capital. And the royal capital of Luang Prabang remains menaced by pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces moving on it from the north.

So far neither threat appears

But the mere fact that rebel units are advancing on two important fronts sends shivers of apprehension through Luang Prabang, battle-scarred Vientiane and the militarily important government bases of Paksane and Tha Thom, which guard the narrow waist of

Plenty Of Warning From The Reds

In the late 1930s, when the beat of war drums grew louder every month, the politicians of the day had a ready-made blueprint for future events. Their antagonist had obligingly written it all down in his fantastic "Mein Kampf."

Today, leaders of Communist nations are just as frank, if not as specific as Hitler was, about their intentions. At the end of last November's meeting in Moscow, attended by delegates from 81 Communist parties, a statement was issued surveying the titanic struggle now in progress between democratic nations in the Soviet orbit, particularly as it affected economic condi-

This statement deserved a wider readership than it got. Some of its prognostications are being borne out in Laos and Cuba.

'Our time," says part of the statement, "whose main content is the normalization from capitalism to socialism initiated by the great October revolution, is a time of struggle between the two social systems, a time of socialistic revolutions and nationalistic liberalistic revolutions ... a time of transition of more peoples to the

The Fabulous Sixties

The roaring Twenties were not particularly roaring. One might say that as a result of Prohibition and its concomitants, it was a loose moral period during which many of the mores and habits of the Nineteenth Century were shaken off. One hears these days the phrase, "the

Thus far, little else in the Sixties has been fabulous or in fact very different from the Fifties or for that matter the Forties. However, there are distinctions to

I know, for instance, that there are about 100 Conservative Clubs on campuses from coast to coast. They go by different names, as, for instance, "Young Americans for Freedom." These are young people who probably will have to take the abuse and ridicule that young Communists did in the Twenties and Thirties, but they are equally dedicated even if their programs are not altogether clear in their own minds. Being individualists, they are not readily absorbed by other men's ideas or interpretations, and having rebelled against the compulsive conformity of their environment, they seek for independent statements of ideas.

Among the extreme, perhaps exhibitionistic, individualists are the Beats, as they prefer to call themselves. Of these, there are two kinds, the genuine and the pseudo. The genuine rebel against the mores of their society, even to avoiding cleanliness or orderly living, or advertised clothes styles or cosmetics; the pseudo do the same, but exaggeratedly so. The genuine attempt to do real work at whatever may be their proficiency; the pseudo are usually either bums who live on others or rich kids out for a thrill. The pseudos end up with heroin. The genuine Beats are mystics who are influenced by Zen Buddhism and by such writers as Dostoevsky, Kierkegaard and Sartre and who are doing really significant work in music and art. They are now moving into their 40s and are not to be ignored. Of course, the pseudos make the whole thing look ridiculous, as they always do about everything.

The conservative trend in youth can be exaggerated by those who are wishful about it, as perhaps I am. But one need only spend time with young people to discover the consistency of a trend. At the beginning of this century, sex was discovered as something that was written about in books and could be discussed in the parlor. Young folks were reading Ibsen, Sudermann, Hauptmann, Shaw, Brieux, Havelock Ellis, Krafft-Ebing, etc., etc. Sex revolt marked the young intellectual. A currently forgotten book, Elsie Clews Parsons's study of the family, made a profound impression.

The family was marked as a restriction upon progress. In the Sixties, the kids know all about sex and conversation concerning it is a bore. One does not sit around talking about a biological inevitability. Freud and Jung are relegated to the experts who have really passed them by. The youngsters are more concerned about the atom and its sanity or insanity. Will they all be killed or will they produce genetically modified off-

Whereas for a few decades, religion ceased to have much attraction for the young, except esthetically or as a cradle habit, religion in the Sixties moves forward as an essential for the whole man and the more conservative religious expressions show the greatest gains. Mysticism, in some form, seems to appeal strongly to students of the physical sciences which astonishes the elders who would expect such minds to be atheistic. So the social scientists tend to say that the family is the soundest unit of society, a revolt against an earlier rebellion.

Free marriage, which is the outstanding development of the early 20th Century, marked the rejection of parental supervision. Free marriage means that the mates select each other without parental intervention. Prior to this period, it was usual for parents to arrange marriages, often to the satisfaction of a family rather than the individuals concerned.

But the Twentieth Century produced an exaggerated increase in divorces and broken homes which the youngsters have come to resent and to which they attribute many of their own maladies. The broken home has become a symbol of evil. Youngsters are nowadays amateur sociologists and psychiatrists and their conversations concerning broken homes and their erring parents would astonish oldsters if they could listen to them. The next generation wants to marry for keeps and wants large families. (Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.) 'I Wish I Had His Farm Problem'

WASHINGTON

The week's big event in Congress was simple enough. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana successfully passed his first test as Majority Leader, when the Senate sent the whole problem of changes in the Senate rules back to the Rules Committee.

For the student of Congress, the fight over the rules was an interesting affair. To begin with, the apple of discord was hurled by Vice President Nixon. In order to open the way for a rules fight, Nixon used his power as presiding officer to condemn as "unconstitutional" the Senate's previous vote that its existing rules survived from session to session.

Having placed the Senate under the unaccustomed guidance of Roberts's "Rults of Order" and Thomas Jefferson's "Manual," the Vice President vanished from the scene. Senate Minority Leader Everett Dirksen then hastened to extract a Republican advantage from the situation that Nixon had created. He smoothly offered Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia conservative Republican help in the Southern fight against any radical change in the Senate rules which Nixon had declared void.

Sen. Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania and the other Democratic liberals at once plunged into the fray, with their customary disregard for practical consequences. This time, however, the liberal banners carried a compromising slogan. Instead of a rules change absolutely outlawing filibusters, the liberals were now seeking merely to reduce the Senate majority needed to condemn a filibuster from two-thirds to three-were therefore ready to talk until kingdom come, preventing the inauguration if need be. But among the Senators ready to back the compromise, Mansfield also discovered just enough who were equally willing to refer the whole matter to the Rules Committee.

This was what the Senate voted to do on Wednesday, by a majority of 50 to 46. As anyone who studies the roll call can see, the final effect of the wordy struggle was to recreate, at least for the time being, the old Republican conservative - Southern coalition. The liberal effort to exploit the situation produced by Nixon in fact assisted the wily Dirksen more than anyone else.

cisely because one has heard the same story so often before. The liberal fondness for gestures and carelessness of solid results; the Republican maneuvers to promote an alliance with the Southerners against the liberals; the Southerners' willingness to be exploited, even if the original troublemaker was a Republican himself, as in the present case—all this is very The legislative program of of power in the House. He is the person who controls the make-up of the principal committees, including the traffic-cop Rules Committee, in which so much liberal legislation has languished.

The bald, elderly Texan never has been known as a liberal. In many areas he is identified with the conservative bloc of his party in Congress. The shrewd, experienced Rayburn now knows, although he is not saving how much leeway he has in organizing the 87th Congress in relation to the objectives he and Kennedy want to achieve.

Close examination of the makeup of committees in the House over the next few weeks will provide a good tip-off on how far Kennedy-and Rayburn-plan to go this year and next.

The re-emergence of the Republican conservative-Southern coalition only means that Equally familiar, at any rate to Kennedy is going to have to make a special effort to secure Southern support. But the quality of a ten-times-told tale which tinctures the whole Congressional situation is genuinely ominous.

Warts are unsightly and almost everyone wants to get rid of them, even though they never killed anyone. Those on the hands often interfere with typing, piano playing, and other hand activity. Children delight in picking or nibbling on the growths, which makes them bleed or spread.

These ugly lesions are not acquired from toads, folklore to the contrary. They result from invasion of the skin by a virus, usually over an area that has been injured or subjected to repeated trauma. The micro-organism sets up a reaction that produces the overgrowth and localized wrinkling similar to the elevations made by ants or worms working under the surface. The virus may die, ultimately but his dirty work

Warts are infectious. This may explain why one in the family often is followed by similar lesions in other members of the household. In addition, a person with a wart between two fingers may develop another on the surface of the adjoining finger. Some people seem to be immune to warts and never get them despite lobbying drive by gas and oil companies to pass the Natural Gas Act in 1956. Seldom has a more effective lobbying operation been seen in Washington. It succeeded in passing the gas act. which set aside the Supreme Court's decision regulating natural gas.

Will Sen. Case Fight? But in doing so, the lobby overreached itself and it was revealed that lobbyists for Howard Keck of Superior Oil of California had attempted to bribe Sen. Francis Case of South Dakota. Senator Case, who rejected the

$2,500 bribe and spilled the beans to the Senate, is now a member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee which must pass on Connally's qualifications to be Secretary of the Navy. Case is a mildmannered man who usually ducks a fight. It's doubtful that he will cross-examine Connally to any great extent. Incidentally, Connally was never put on the witness stand by the McClellan committee entrusted with investigating the gas lobby

However, some other Republicans, plus some Democrats believe now might be a good time to dig into the influence of oil as it affects Washington legislation.

These Senators are getting fed up with finding oil influencing both Republicans and Democrats, the Congress and the White House -including the silent partnership of Texas oilman Bill Byars in the Eisenhower farms in Gettysburg. Skillful Lyndon Johnson

Significantly, the reason there was no penetrating probe of the gas lobby following the attempt to bribe Senator Case was the personable and popular Vice President-elect Lyndon Johnson.

Sen. Tom Hennings of Missouri had introduced a resolution for a broad probe of the gas-oil lobby. Suddenly Johnson called the Senate into a surprise session at 11 a.m., one hour early, and whipped through a restricted investigation to probe only the attempted bribe of Senator Case.

Then he quickly appointed his own special committee and staged an immediate meeting in Vice President Nixon's office to get a ruling as to whether Henning's standing committee, which had the standing power for a broad investigation, or Johnson's special committee for a restricted investigation, had jurisdiction.

Nixon is supposed to make rulsome of his biggest backers in California were oilmen. He ruled privately that the special committee for a restricted probe had jurisdiction. All this took place wthin the period of two hours. At 1:40 Senator Johnson called Hennings into his office, tossed him a teletyped U.P. message reporting that he, Hennings had called Senator Case to testify at 2 p.m. "You're in contempt of the senate." Johnson told his colleague from Missouri. He referred to the quickie ruling by Nixon that the special commit-'tee, not Hennings' standing committee, should investigate the gas lobbying.

"For three years," countered Hennings, who told me of the incident with great indignation, "I have tried to get off this standing committee. But every time I've tried, you wanted me to stay on-to investigate McCarthy, or the Maryland elections, or Pat Hurley's charges in New Mexico. In deference to you I've stayed. So it seems queer that today you don't want me to investigate something where you yourself said only yesterday the integrity of the Senate was involved. Johnson, however, was admant One of Lyndon's great qualities is loyalty to his friends. His former assistant, John Connally, was the mastermind of the oil-gas lobby So the special investigation followed very narrow lines. Connally never testified. And today, the same John Connally, who guided Johnson's campaign for President and later for Vice President, comes up for Senate scrutiny to be head of the U.S. Navy, the biggest buyer of oil in

Note-in the end, Elmer Parran and John Neff, lobbyists for Superior Oil of California, were fined only $2,500 each and given only one year suspended sentences for attempting to bribe a U.S. Senator. The U.S. judge who let the two bribers off so lightly was Joseph C. McGarraghy, appointed by Eisenhower after he had served as an Ike delegate to the 1952 GOP convention, and chairman of the Eisenhower-Nixon inaugural Parade committee. Neither Howard Keck, head of Superior Oil, nor any of the Keck family were defendants, though the corporation, which cannot be put in jail, pled guilty and was fined $10,000.

because the new American male lacks aggression. He is becoming too polite, too sweet, too easily turned away from his goals. Our women - God help us! now have more aggression than the men. They are bolder, brassier, and more ready to fight for the things they want. Once, they wore a mantle of lovely ignorance. There is a joke about a fat man sitting in his socks in front of a television set. His wife walked across the room and slapped him. He looked up and growled: "What's that for?" She trembled with rage. "That," she said, "is because you kiss lousy." He sat back and watched the show

Then he stood, walked across the room to where she sat, and hauled off and belted her. "What's that for?" she said.

'That," he said, "is for knowing the difference.

Man has always kept his woman ignorant, because what she didn't know couldn't hurt him. The ladies used to brag that they knew nothing except what their mothers and husbands taught them. The men of those times were more aggressive and it was not unusual for a boy with only four years of schooling to rise to the top of the heap and become a millionaire. The women could afford to be passive. They could express their own secret aggressions by forcing their husbands to do their bidding.

It was a nice sort of life that way. The men were men; the women were ladies. Aggression is not belligerence, nor bad manners, nor pugnaciousness. It is a manly desire to cherish and protect and dominate a family and to go out in the world and fight for the good things for them.

In Dr. William Glasser's new book. Mental Health or Mental Illness? (Harper), he says it succinctly: "All civilized societies are continually caught in a basic dilemma: the need to curb aggressiveness to the point where it does not harm others yet not curb it to the point where it ceases to function for the good of the individual." Nations that become soft and effete almost always fall under the heels of more aggressive coun-

Dr. Glasser points out that the women now outnumber the men, and they have learned to be aggressive for themselves. Most motion pictures and television shows that depict family life show the mother as the dominating influence and the man as a bumbling, good-natured idiot. It wasn't that way in our house. My father ruled the roost and the issue was never

The most important element in making a man is not victory, but defeat. If I had a son who played football, I would hope that, in the first season at least, he would get his brains knocked out. No man learns from triumph. If he can come back after a beating, spitting mud from between his teeth. he has learned lesson number one.

Some psychiatrists have a tendency to write off male aggression as a lost cause. They feel that if we are going to have a race of hypersensitive men with their own special hair-do's, why fight it? Some of our boys are so pretty that it makes one think that mother got her wish when she prayed

This, as a national calamity, is no worse than the psychiatrists who have written off God as wishful thinking. One psychiatrist was in Haiti, where voodoo rites are practiced. He met a witch doctor and studied the array of gods worshipped by the natives. "How can you obey so many idols?" the psychiatrist asked. The witch doctor grinned. "We aren't half as obedient to these gods." he said, "as you Americans are to the one you have strapped on your wrist.' (Copyright 1961. King Features Syndicate Inc.)

Taylor Gets Three TDs: Van Brocklin Stars For Losers

By JOE ST. AMANT United Press International

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - The West All-Stars, sparked by the passing of John Unitas and the running of Jon Arnett and Jim Taylor, squeezed past the East Sunday, 35-31, in the 11th annual Pro Bowl football game.

Norm Van Brocklin, retiring from football at the age of 34, threw three touchdown passes for the East, but the running game of the Easterners could not match

Unitas, named the most valuable back of the game for the second year in a row, tossed just one touchdown pass-a 44-yard beauty to his Baltimore Colt team-mate Lenny Moore. Arnold Defeats Balding In Sudden Death Playoff

SAN DIEGO. Calif. (AP)-Arada in a sudden death playoff in National Guard vs. Fulton Myers the $20,000 San Diego Open golf tournament Sunday.

Palmer shot a birdie three on the 347-yard first hole of the playoff to bring it to a quick conclusion and haul down the $2.-800 first prize. Balding with a par four collected $1.900.

It was a dramatic head and head duel between the 31-year-old American star and the 36-year-old lean, lanky Canadian as they played in the same threesome. Balding Blows Chance

They came to the 18th green all even after Palmer had made up two shots on the last nine holes. Balding almost sank a 25-foot putt 63 for a birdie two on the last hole which would have won the tournament but he missed by only a foot or two.

three feet short of the cup, and he sank the short putt for a par three on the 18th as did Balding. The huge gallery stormed over to the first tee of the par 35-36-71 Mission Valley Country Club course for the playoff. Palmer's second shot landed about four and a half feet from the pin and he sank the putt for a birdie three. Balding with a gallant effort putted from 15 feet out from the edge of the green and almost got a birdie when the ball jumped in and out of the cup and stopped just an inch away.

Both 13 Under Par Palmer shot a 6-under-par 65 for 271 and Balding, a 66 for the same total, both 13 strokes under par for the four rounds.

Unranked DePaul Stops Louisville, Vandy Is Upset

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer Major college basketball's undefeated list was down to Ohio State and De Paul Sunday, which means-among other things-that Louisville and Vanderbilt have fallen and 6-foot-11 Fred Sawyer can finally wash his size 15 socks.

Ohio State's top-ranked Buckeyes, bolstered by All-America Jerry Lucas' return, and the surprising Demons of De Paul moved smoothly through a week that lowbridged a lot of high hopes.

The defending NCAA champion Buckeyes, who toyed with Evansville earlier while Lucas was sidelined with a knee injury, ran their nation leading winning streak to 17 Saturday and their season record to 12-0 with a 79-45 Big Ten rout of Northwestern. Big Luke scored 30 points.

New W. Virginia Sales Tax Law Is Outlined

No Additional Levy On First Dollar

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)-State Tax Commissioner Don C. Carman Sunday issued the following breakdown of the new West Virginia Consumer sales tax.

As released by his office following an opinion by the attorney

"There is no additional tax on sales of $1 or less.

"The first $1 of any sale is exempt from any additional tax.

"The consumer sales tax on a transaction will be the present 2 per cent rate plus an additional 1 cent of tax on each $1 or fraction thereof over the sales trans-

A stamp-saving game that American children get paid for playing

Today, thousands of American youngsters are buying U.S. Savings Bonds by buying Savings Stamps each week. Stamps are sold at many schools, through the Treasury's School Savings Program and at most Post Offices. And as the stamp books are filled, they can be exchanged for full-fledged Bonds.

While they save for Bonds, these children are learning lessons in good citizenship and thrift. And at the same time they're helping keep the peace.

Here's how an eight-year school savings program works:

If they save this much each week	Bonds collected	Total Saved	Value at maturity
25c	4	$75.00	$100.00
50c	8	$150.00	$200.00

Why not get your children in the saving habit early with U. S. Bonds? If your school doesn't have a Savings Stamp program just write for information to your Savings Bonds State Director, or to the Savings Bond Division, U. S. Treasury Department, Washington 25, D. C.

... and a special note to grownups about U.S. Savings Bonds:

You can save automatically with the Payroll Savings Plan.

You now earn 33/4% interest to maturity.

You invest without risk under a U. S. Government guarantee.

Your money can't be lost or stolen.

You can get your money, with interest, anytime you want it.

You save more than money — you help your Government pay for peace.

Buy Bonds where you work or bank.

You save more than money with

U.S. Savings Bonds

You help save the peace

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband father, John W. Snyder, who passed way 2 years ago today, Jan. 16, 1959.

Mechanic. Dial PA 4-6751. A loving one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

As years roll on & days pass by,
Deep in our heart your memory is kept.
Of the one we loved, can never forget.
Sadly missed by his wife.
Sadly missed by his wife.

Crews were cindering and salting slush-covered roads in Allegany and Washington counties. Garrett roads were being plowed before salt and cinders were scat-

SRC officials said the snowfall averaged about 31/2 inches all over the area. Most of it melted in the lower sections.

State Police detachments at Bedford and Romney reported late yesterday afternoon that the snow which had fallen was very slippery and was slowing traffic. The snow was mostly slush in the downtown area here.

Half An Inch Here

Robert R. Golden, official weather observer, said less than half an inch of rain and melted snow fell here from early morning until 6 p.m.

He said the rain which began early yesterday morning turned into a mixture of rain and snow at 2 p.m. and then to straight snow slush had melted in lower parts of the city.

Police Pleased With Uniform Traffic Ticket

MERICAN

Plan Won't Affect Revenue Of City

The Cumberland Police Department is well pleased with the uniform traffic ticket which will be used on all moving violations beginning February 1, according to Commissioner Philmore Fleming.

He said supplies of the new tickets, which are tied in with the operation of the point system of the Department of Motor Vehicles. are expected here late this week.

Five copies of each ticket will be issued, he said. They will go to the court, the Department of Motor Vehicles, headquarters, arresting officer and the defendant.

Ticket For Each

Mr. Fleming said one of the major differences is that if there is more than one violation, a ticket will have to be issued for each offense.

He said the new tickets will have no effect on the present system whereby some violations call for state and some for city charges.

Teachers' Salaries, Tobacco Tax Studied

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)-The Maryland Legislature, struggling with tax problems in a year of fiscal plenty, returns Monday to two of its biggest headaches: school teachers salaries and cigarets.

Subcommittees of the House and Senate will begin studying how to give school teachers a pay raise, for which there is growing sentiment in the legislature and which Gov. Tawes insists be financed with new tax money if it is grant-

And the House Ways and Means Committee will hold a public hearing at 11 a. m. Wednesday on a proposed tobacco tax increase which would be of no benefit to the state and has become increasingly controversial.

Both started out as steps to ease the revenue problems of local governments.

The state itself would have no revenue problems this year unless it added new spending programs to the budget. A surplus of around $23 million would balance next year's budget. Enough would be left over to get through the following year, when experts predict normal budget-growth would catch up with the revenue on

Thus Gov. Tawes and the legislaters could seek re-election in 1962 on a program of not having raised taxes

Plenty Of Warning From The Reds

In the late 1930s, when the beat of war drums grew louder every month, the politicians of the day had a ready-made blueprint for future events. Their antagonist had obligingly written it all down in his fantastic "Mein Kampf."

Today, leaders of Communist nations are just as frank, if not as specific as Hitler was, about their intentions. At the end of last November's meeting in Moscow, attended by delegates from 81 Communist parties, a statement was issued surveying the titanic struggle now in progress between democratic nations in the Soviet orbit, particularly as it affected economic condi-

This statement deserved a wider readership than it got. Some of its prognostications are being borne out in Laos and Cuba.

"Our time," says part of the statement, "whose main content is the normalization from capitalism to socialism initiated by the great October revolution, is a time of struggle between the two social systems, a time of socialistic revolutions and nationalistic liberalistic revolutions ... a time of transition of more peoples to the socialistic position of the triumph of socialism and Communism on a world wide scale.

The sudden resurgence of Communist offensive spirit in Laos, openly supported by Soviet spies, and the belligerence of Castro in Cuba, have not just happened accidentally at this particular time. Advantage is being taken of the system of transferring authority in the United

The roaring Twenties were not particularly roaring. One might say that as a result of Prohibition and its concomitants, it was a loose moral period during which many of the mores and habits of the Nineteenth Century were shaken off. One hears these days the phrase, "the

Thus far, little else in the Sixties has been fabulous or in fact very different from the Fifties or for that matter the Forties. However, there are distinctions to which Nixon had declared void.

I know, for instance, that there are about 100 Conservative Clubs on campuses from coast to coast. They go by different names, as, for instance, "Young Americans for Freedom." These are young people who probably will have to take the abuse and ridicule that young Communists did in the Twenties and Thirties, but they are equally dedicated even if their programs are not altogether clear in their own minds. Being individualists, they are not readily absorbed by other men's ideas or interpretations, and having rebelled against the compulsive conformity of their environment, they seek for independent statements of ideas.

Among the extreme, perhaps exhibitionistic, individualists are the Beats, as they prefer to call themselves. Of these, there are two kinds, the genuine and the pseudo. The genuine rebel against the mores of their society, even to avoiding cleanliness or orderly living, or advertised clothes styles or cosmetics; the pseudo do the same, but exaggeratedly so. The genuine attempt to do real work at whatever may be their proficiency; the pseudo are usually either bums who live on others or rich kids out for a thrill. The pseudos end up with heroin. The genuine Beats are mystics who are influenced by Zen Buddhism and by such writers as Dostoevsky, Kierkegaard and Sartre and who are doing really significant work in music and art. They are now moving into their 40s and are not to be ignored. Of course, the pseudos make the whole thing look ridiculous, as they always do about everything.

The conservative trend in youth can be exaggerated by those who are wishful about it, as perhaps I am. But one need only spend time with young people to discover the consistency of a trend. At the beginning of this century, sex was discovered as something that was written about in books and could be discussed in the parlor. Young folks were reading Ibsen, Sudermann, Hauptmann, Shaw, Brieux, Havelock Ellis, Krafft-Ebing, etc., etc. Sex revolt marked the young intellectual. A currently forgotten book, Elsie Clews Parsons's study of the family, made a profound impression. The family was marked as a restriction upon progress.

In the Sixties, the kids know all about sex and con-

So the social scientists tend to say that the family is the soundest

'I Wish I Had His Farm Problem'

Kennedy Must Develop 'Climate Of Action'

The week's big event in Congress was simple enough. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana successfully passed his first test as Majority Leader, when the Senate sent the whole problem of changes in the Senate rules back to the Rules Committee.

For the student of Congress, the fight over the rules was an interesting affair. To begin with, the apple of discord was hurled by Vice President Nixon. In order to open the way for a rules fight, Nixon used his power as presiding officer to condemn as "unconstitutional" the Senate's previous vote that its existing rules survived from session to session.

Having placed the Senate under the unaccustomed guidance of Roberts's "Rults of Order" and Thomas Jefferson's "Manual," the Vice President vanished from e Senate Minority Lear Everett Dirksen then hastened to extract a Republican advantage from the situation that Nixon had created. He smoothly offered Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia conservative Republican help in the Southern fight against any radical change in the Senate rules

Sen. Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania and the other Democratic liberals at once plunged into the fray, with their customary disregard for practical consequences. This time, however, the liberal banners carried a compromising slogan. Instead of a rules change absolutely outlawing filibusters, the liberals were now seeking merely to reduce the Senate majority needed to condemn a filibuster from two-thirds to threefifths of the whole.

This compromise commanded a rather solid majority of the Senate, as Sen. Mansfield soon discovered. To boss this majority, Sen. Russell and his Southerners By Joseph Alsop were therefore ready to talk until kingdom come, preventing the inauguration if need be. But among the Senators ready to back the compromise. Mansfield also discovered just enough who were equally willing to refer the whole matter to the Rules Committee.

This was what the Senate voted to do on Wednesday, by a majority of 50 to 46. As anyone who studies the roll call can see, the final effect of the wordy struggle was to recreate, at least for the time being, the old Republican conservative - Southern coalition. The liberal effort to exploit the situation produced by Nixon in more than anyone else.

This episode is interesting, precisely because one has heard the same story so often before. The liberal fondness for gestures and carelessness of solid results: the Republican maneuvers to promote an alliance with the Southerners against the liberals; the Southerners' willingness to be exploited, even if the original troublemaker was a Republican himself, as in the present case—all this is very

The legislative program of President-elect Kennedy, at least as announced to date, is only too familiar. It contains no item which has not passed the Senate, fact assisted the wily Dirksen at least, in one form or another. Equally familiar, at any rate to ways, the real center of power in Washington may lie for the next four years in the hands of Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, of Recent legislative history shows that Kennedy can count on a majority in the Senate for some of his most urgent projects. These include aid to education, an increase in the minimum wage, and a medical program for aged under

Social Security, It was the House that blocked or severely modified most of these innovations last year. And the hand of the opposition forces has actually been strengthened, except for the White House occupancy of Kennedy, who advocated these measures.

CENTER OF POWER-In many of power in the House. He is the person who controls the make-up of the principal committees, including the traffic-cop Rules Committee, in which so much liberal legislation has languished.

The bald, elderly Texan never has been known as a liberal. In many areas he is identified with the conservative bloc of his party in Congress. The shrewd, experienced Rayburn now knows, although he is not saying, how much leeway he has in organizing the 87th Congress in relation to the objectives he and Kennedy want to achieve. Close examination of the make-up of committees in the House over the next few weeks will provide a good tip-off on how far Kennedy-and Rayburn-plan to Rayburn is the ultimate source go this year and next.

changes of administration, are the grumbles now being heard in so many Congressional quarters. This great man in the House has a nephew who has served long and well in an important regulatory commission: and now the nephew has been passed over for the chairmanship in favor of a rank outsider. That leading Senator has a friend and protege whom Secretary of Defense-designate Robert McNamara obstinately refuses to name to an Assistant Secretaryship. And so it goes.

The grumbles only mean that President-elect Kennedy's Congressional liaison is not yet in good working order. The re-emergence of the Republican conservative-Southern coalition only means that Kennedy is going to have to make a special effort to secure Southern support. But the quality of a ten-times-told tale which tinctures the whole Congressional situation is genuinely ominous.

The point is that the present Congressional atmosphere of business-as-usual, stogan - as-usual, squabbles-as-usual, and grumblesas-usual, is by no means an atmosphere that lends itself to bold. emergency action. Yet the gold drain, the acute political-military crises in Laos and the Congo, the defense position, the general drift of world events, all combine to call for bold and probably painful

Thus Kennedy's primary problem, from the very moment that he takes the oath, will be to create a climate of action. He can only do so, beyond doubt, by bringing the country up short with a sharp warning of the exceptionally grave national situation, which most people have hardly noticed. If the country changes, Congress will also change.

Rumbles Of Dissent Over Kennedy's Navy Secretary Heard In Senate

WASHINGTON - One of the ablest young men Kennedy has appointed to his administration is Texas oil attorney John Connally to be the new Secretary of the Navy. There are also rumblings of dissent over his confirmation. The rumblings are understandable and may reach serious proportions. Here is what is behind Rumble No. 1 — results from the precedent of Ed Pauley, close friend of President Truman, who was blocked as Under Secretary of the Navy because of Senate protests that an oilman should not handle the vast oil reserves of the Navy. The Senate charged nothing unethical about Pauley. but believed there would be inevitable conflicts of interest. Opposition was so strong that Truman withdrew his name.

Rumble No. 2 — results from a Fortune magazine article reporting the amazing manner in which the Navy let a contract to three Texans, one of them the late Sid Richardson. Vice President-elect Lyndon Johnson's brother later gave up his $16,000-a-year clerkship in the Senate to be an official of the Texas company. Connally, the proposed new Secretary of the Navy, was attorney for Sid Richardson at the time this amazing Navy contract was awarded, practically without competitive bidding.

Rumble No. 3 - Connally was the brains and mainspring of the lobbying drive by gas and oil

Will Sen. Case Fight? But in doing so, the lobby over-reached itself and it was revealed that lobbyists for Howard Keck of Superior Oil of California had attempted to bribe Sen. Francis Case of South Dakota. Senator Case, who rejected the

$2,500 bribe and spilled the beans to the Senate, is now a member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee which must pass on Connally's qualifications to be Secretary of the Navy. Case is a mildmannered man who usually ducks a fight. It's doubtful that he will cross-examine Connally to any great extent. Incidentally, Connally was never put on the witness stand by the McClellan committee entrusted with investigate ing the gas lobby

However, some other Republicans, plus some Democrats believe now might be a good time to dig into the influence of oil as it affects Washington legislation.

These Senators are getting fed up with finding oil influencing both Republicans and Democrats, the Congress and the White House -including the silent partnership of Texas oilman Bill Byars in the Eisenhower farms in Gettysburg. Skillful Lyndon Johnson

Significantly, the reason there was no penetrating probe of the gas lobby following the attempt to bribe Senator Case was the personable and popular Vice President-elect Lyndon Johnson.

Sen. Tom Hennings of Missouri had introduced a resolution for a broad probe of the gas-oil lobby. Suddenly Johnson called the Senate into a surprise session at 11 a.m., one hour early, and whipped through a restricted investigation to probe only the attempted bribe of Senator Case.

Then he quickly appointed his own special committee and staged an immediate meeting in Vice President Nixon's office to get a ruling as to whether Henning's standing committee, which had the standing power for a broad investigation, or Johnson's special committee for a restricted investigation, had jurisdiction. Nixon is supposed to make rulings in public, not private. But some of his biggest backers in California were oilmen. He ruled privately that the special committee for a restricted probe had

All this took place wthin the period of two hours. At 1:40 Senator Johnson called Hennings into his office, tossed him a teletyped U.P. message reporting that he, Hennings had called

Senator Case to testify at 2 p.m. "You're in contempt of the senate." Johnson told his colleague from Missouri. He referred to the quickie ruling by Nixon that the special commit-'tee, not Hennings' standing committee, should investigate the gas lobbying.

"For three years," countered Hennings, who told me of the incident with great indignation, "I have tried to get off this standing committee. But every time I've tried, you wanted me to stay on-to investigate McCarthy, or the Maryland elections, or Pat Hurley's charges in New Mexico, In deference to you I've stayed. So it seems queer that today you don't want me to investigate something where you yourself said only yesterday the integrity of the Senate was involved.

Johnson, however, was admant One of Lyndon's great qualities is loyalty to his friends. His former assistant, John Connally, was the mastermind of the oil-gas lobby So the special investigation followed very narrow lines. Connally never testified. And today, the same John Connally, who guided Johnson's campaign for President and later for Vice President, comes up for Senate scrutiny to be head of the U.S. Navy, the biggest buyer of oil in lacks aggression. He is becoming too polite, too sweet, too easily turned away from his goals. Our women - God help us! now have more aggression than the men. They are bolder, brassier, and more ready to fight for the things they want. Once, they wore a mantle of lovely ignorance.

Note-in the end. Elmer Parran and John Neff, lobbyists for Superior Oil of California, were fined only $2,500 each and given only one year suspended sentences for attempting to bribe a U.S. Senator. The U.S. judge who let the two bribers off so lightly was Joseph C. McGarraghy, appointed by Eisenhower after he had served as an Ike delegate to the 1952 GOP convention, and chairman of the Eisenhower-Nixon inaugural Parade committee. Neither Howard Keck, head of Superior Oil, nor any of the Keck family were defendants, though the corporation, which cannot be put in jail, pled guilty and was fined $10,000.

There is a joke about a fat man sitting in his socks in front of a television set. His wife walked across the room and slapped him. He looked up and growled: 'What's that for?'' She trembled with rage. "That," she said, "is because you kiss lousy." He sat back and watched the show awhile.

Then he stood, walked across the room to where she sat, and hauled off and belted her. "What's that for?" she said.

"That," he said, "is for knowing the difference.

Man has always kept his woman ignorant, because what she didn't know couldn't hurt him. The ladies used to brag that they knew nothing except what their mothers and husbands taught them. The men of those times were more aggressive and it was not unusual for a boy with only four years of schooling to rise to the top of the heap and become a millionaire. The women could afford to be passive. They could express their own secret aggressions by forcing their husbands to do their bidding.

It was a nice sort of life that way. The men were men; the women were ladies. Aggression is not belligerence, nor bad manners, nor pugnaciousness. It is a manly desire to cherish and protect and dominate a family and to go out in the world and fight for the good things for them.

In Dr. William Glasser's new book, Mental Health or Mental Illness? (Harper), he says it succinctly: "All civilized societies are continually caught in a basic dilemma: the need to curb aggressiveness to the point where it does not harm others yet not curb it to the point where it ceases to function for the good of the individual." Nations that become soft and effete almost always fall under the heels of more aggressive coun-

"Treat the girl as though she was your sister." I used to get so irritated that I'd say: "If she was my sister, I wouldn't go out with her."

Dr. Glasser points out that the women now outnumber the men, and they have learned to be aggressive for themselves. Most motion pictures and television shows that depict family life show the mother as the dominating influence and the man as a bumbling, good-natured idiot. It wasn't that way in our house. My father ruled the roost and the issue was never

The most important element in making a man is not victory, but defeat. If I had a son who played football, I would hope that, in the first season at least, he would get his brains knocked out. No man learns from triumph. If he can come back after a beating, spitting mud from between his teeth, he has learned lesson number one.

Some psychiatrists have a tendency to write off male aggression as a lost cause. They feel that if we are going to have a race of hypersensitive men with their own special hair-do's, why fight it? Some of our boys are so pretty that it makes one think that mother got her wish when she prayed

This, as a national calamity, is no worse than the psychiatrists who have written off God as wishful thinking. One psychiatrist was in Haiti, where voodoo rites are practiced. He met a witch doctor and studied the array of gods worshipped by the natives.

"How can you obey so many idols?" the psychiatrist asked.

The witch doctor grinned. "We aren't half as obedient to these gods," he said, "as you Americans are to the one you have strapped on your wrist.

Different Types Of Warts And Their Treatment

"Doctor, please send me your leaflet on warts and please hurry or you might receive several warty boys in the next mail. I can't stand it much longer,'

Warts are unsightly and almost everyone wants to get rid of them, even though they never killed anyone. Those on the hands often interfere with typing, piano playing, and other hand activity. Children delight in picking or nibbling on the growths, which makes them bleed or spread.

These ugly lesions are not acquired from toads, folklore to the contrary. They result from invasion of the skin by a virus, usually over an area that has been injured or subjected to repeated trauma. The micro-organism sets overgrowth and localized wrink- garis. The fingers, hands, and ling similar to the elevations under the surface. The virus may die, ultimately but his dirty work

Warts are infectious. This may explain why one in the family often is followed by similar lesions in other members of the household. In addition, a person with a wart between two fingers may develop another on the surface of the adjoining finger. Some

Today, thousands of American youngsters are buying U.S. Savings Bonds by buying Savings Stamps each week. Stamps are sold at many schools, through the Treasury's School Savings Program and at most Post Offices. And as the stamp books are filled, they can be exchanged for full-fledged Bonds.

While they save for Bonds, these children are learning lessons in good citizenship

and thrift. And at the same time they're helping keep the peace.

Here's how an eight-year school savings program works:

f they save this much each week	Bonds collected	Total Saved	Value at maturity
25c	4	$75.00	$100.00
50c	8	$150.00	$200.00

Why not get your children in the saving habit early with U. S. Bonds? If your school doesn't have a Savings Stamp program just write for information to your Savings Bonds State Director, or to the Savings Bond Division, U. S. Treasury Department, Washington 25, D. C.

... and a special note to grownups about U.S. Savings Bonds:

You can save automatically with the Payroll Savings Plan.

You now earn 33/4% interest to maturity.

You invest without risk under a U. S. Government guarantee.

Your money can't be lost or stolen.

You can get your money, with interest, anytime you want it.

You save more than money — you help your Government pay for peace.

Buy Bonds where you work or bank.

You save more than money with

U.S. Savings Bonds

You help save the peace

Teachers' Salaries, Tobacco Tax Studied

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)-The Maryland Legislature, struggling with tax problems in a year of fiscal plenty, returns Monday to two of its biggest headaches: school teachers salaries and cigarets.

Subcommittees of the House and Senate will begin studying how to give school teachers a pay raise, for which there is growing sentiment in the legislature and which Gov. Tawes insists be financed with new tax money if it is grant-

And the House Ways and Means Committee will hold a public hearing at 11 a. m. Wednesday on a proposed tobacco tax increase which would be of no benefit to the state and has become increasingly controversial.

Both started out as steps to ease the revenue problems of local governments

The state itself would have no revenue problems this year unless it added new spending programs to the budget. A surplus of around $23 million would balance next year's budget. Enough would be left over to get through the following year, when experts predict normal budget-growth would catch up with the revenue on
